Today we are reminded that our earthly possessions, such as silver and gold are perishable and temporary. However, we continue to place a High demand on materials, particularly those that are extracted from the earth.

Canadian mining companies continue to engage in unethical practices throughout the Global South, and have become notorious for their lack of attention to environmental and human rights issues. D & P continues to advocate for an independent human rights ombudsman for Canada's extractive sector. This will help to ensure that Canadian mining companies have an obligation, not just an option, to behave ethically. Go to <http://www.devp.org/voicefor> justice for more information.
